Once upon a time, there were three horse sisters:
A strong one
a smart one and a weird one.

Sick of being ridden every day, the three talked amongst themselves about how to be rid of their masters.

"We are ten times their size," said the strongest sister. "We should simply buck them off and be done with it!"

"That's far too violent," argued the smartest sister. "We should trick them into dismounting us and run away!"

The third sister - who didn't seem to give the slightest hint of a crap about the current state of affairs - weighed in

Hey, you know what's a fun activity that I like to do?
Being DRENCHED IN MUD!
